Project Management has gone from an accidental profession to one that is constantly maturing and becoming a career of choice for graduates and working professionals. But not everyone is designed to be a project manager and this realisation by employers and individuals alike will contribute to a better understanding of the role and thus a maturing of the profession. Using day-to-day analogies attendees will relate to, PMSA CEO Taryn van Olden will look at the trends that give rise to what can arguably be considered the ideal characteristics of project managers, some of which are innate, others of which can be developed, consistent with the expectations the world has of our project practitioners and the deliverables associated with the knowledge areas in project management.

Taryn van Olden*Chief Executive officerPROJECT MANAGEMENT SOUTH AFRICA (PMSA)*09:15 – 12:00 Gordon Institute Of Business Science – Pre-Master Class Workshop*EFFECTIVE EXECUTION*Facilitated By:*Tony Christodoulou*What Gives Your Facilitator Credibility?

Tony is currently lecturing at GIBS (Gordon Institute of Business Science) on their suite of programmes in the field of Project Management, Information and Knowledge Management (on their academic and executive suite of courses including the full time MBA and MPhil Master's Degree from 2013). Tony is also one of the part-time lecturers for UCT for their Graduate School of Business - Mastery Programme in Project Management. Academically, Tony completed his accreditation as a practitioner in the new PRINCE2 2009 methodology, MSP certified for the past 5 years and has done studies in project management applications, business process optimisation and has become passionate in the field of effective execution. Tony has completed two degrees at Bond University, the first in BIS (Bachelor of Information Systems) and the second in B-COM Marketing. In 2008 he completed his Masters in Business Administration (MBA) through GIBS

Why Attend The Workshop?

This session will provide you the essential insights in today's industry and Project efficiencies and touch on what's required today to initiate, manage, monitor and drive delivery through the life cycle of a project successfully. Delivery is not only measured by the fact that it was brought to existence, but the manner in which it was executed and whether it is in line with the original expectations and business case of what it was intending to deliver. Organisations more than ever are under pressure to operate and deliver more effectively and efficiently, place greater emphasis on stream-lining internal operations, increase focus on customer needs, on superior service delivery in relation to competitors and within shorter timeframes, in order to retain their existing customer base as well as to increase their market share. With the current rate that Companies are moving at globally, coupled with the pace of change, more now than ever an Organisations ability to execute (on time, on budget, within expectations) is not only good for business but is a necessity. This shift in mind-set requires organisations to have the ability to manage and effectively utilise their resources to the best of their ability to derive direct tangible value through the projects they initiate.
